Only one case remains to be tried in civil court this week and that was taken up this morning before Judge Umbel. It is the suit of J. W. Brown against I. K. and Mrs. Alice Conway to recover $285 which he claims is due for alterations and repairs to a house in Connellsville. The jury was taken to Connellsville to examine the property and testimony will be taken when court convenes this afternoon.

Before Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen the suit in equity of John A. Hebb against the Hebb Coke Drawer Company to prevent the issuance of any stock save to Hebb himself, was taken up. Hebb invented the machine and claims he was to have received one-third of all the stock issued in exchange for his patent rights. He claims to have 600 shares still coming to him.

HUNDRED DETECTIVES AFTER BLACK HANDER

Woman Believed to Be at the Bottom of Slaying of Samuel Bersin.

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The police have made substantial progress toward the solving of the mystery of the murder of Samuel Bersin, a painter, whose dismembered and headless body was found last night in a bundle at the corner of Oliver and Henry streets. The head was found today under an arch of the Brooklyn bridge after the body had been identified by Bersin's brother and sister.

While a number of arrest have been made the police admit they do not believe they have the actual criminal and are working on the theory that a woman is at the bottom of the slaying. One hundred detectives are working on the case. The autopsy held today revealed that Bersin was killed by being stabbed in the chest.

The bundles containing the torso and limbs of the murdered man were left in charge of a small boy who was promised five cents if he watched them until the stranger returned. On the wrappings was written in letters of red three inches high: "Black Hand."

SUICIDE AT SCOTT HAVEN.

Continued Ill Health Said to Have Been the Cause.

John Rhoades, a prominent resident of Scott Haven, and one of the best known young miners in the valley, shot himself through the brain early yesterday morning shortly after rising. The young man had been afflicted with rheumatism for over a year, and was consequently unable to work. His prolonged illness is thought to have been the cause of his act. He is survived by his wife and two children; also two brothers and two sisters, Frank and David of Scott Haven, Mrs. Tillie Hill and Mrs. Jerry Nuttall, of Coal Hollow. The funeral will take place today.

FEARSOME FREAK OF LIGHTNING

Hurrying Along It Stops to Take Time To Unharness Smith James' Horse.

While Smith James was driving towards town yesterday during the worst of the storm, a bolt of lightning struck a ring on the harness of the horse's collar. The force of the shock ripped the harness from the animal and left him standing in the road without a strap about him. If the lightning wasn't always in such a hurry it might have curried the horse, and rubbed him down. The horse was too frightened to move.

The peculiar part of it was that neither James nor his horse was injured in the least, while the harness was literally cut to shreds.

John Barnes, who drives for A. H. Manheimer, was coming up the road just behind James and saw the whole accident. He helped James get his horse and rig to town. The accident happened along the Breakneck road, at Gilmore's Mills.

BLAZE, FIREMEN AND COPS DON'T BUDGE HIM

Michael Joshing Stood Pat until Ejected From Room By Fire. Fined $10.

United Press Telegram.

McKEESPORT, Pa., June 11—Michael Joshing is $10 poorer because he refused to get out of bed when the mattress caught fire. When the firemen entered Mike's room and found the mattress ablaze the sleeper was politely requested to get out. Mike replied that he had paid his rent in advance and refused to budge.

When the firemen attempted to pull him out of bed Joshing started a fight and knocked several firemen down. He was finally subdued by half a dozen policemen and many firemen. This morning Mayor Herbert Arthurs fined him $10. Joshing paid the fine and went back to the charred cot to finish his nap.

FIRE IN MINE.

PITTSBURG, June 11.(Special.)—A fire is today raging at the Jumbo mine of the Pittsburg Coal Company at McDonald. After a battle of 36 hours it is still spreading. The mine has been walled up and every precaution taken to prevent the spread of the flames but just how far it has reached cannot be ascertained. The mouth of the mine and all the ventilators have been closed.

THE MARTYRDOM OF COLONEL CRAWFORD.

THE THRILLING STORY OF THE TRAGIC DEATH OF GREATER CONNELLSVILLE'S FIRST AND GREATEST CITIZEN AND REAL FOUNDER.

The 127th Anniversary of the Burning at the Stake of Colonel William Crawford; Brief Review of the Life and Public Services of "The Great Captain;" His Intimate Relations With Washington.

On June 11, 1782, Greater Connellsville's first and greatest citizen, while engaged in defending this section, then known as the Western Border, suffered martyrdom at the stake.

The story of Colonel William Crawford's early life and self-made career, his prominent part in Pennsylvania's history, his close personal friendship with George Washington from youth, his intimate business relations with Mt. Vernon's master up to the beginning of the Revolution, his military services under General Washington in that war and the colonial wars preceding it, and, finally, his tragic death while leading an expedition against the Ohio Indians, makes one of the most interesting chapters in American history.

The following address, delivered recently before the Washington County Historical Society by Henry P. Snyder, editor of The Courier, will therefore be of interest to the patriotic citizens of Connellsville and Western Pennsylvania on the 127th anniversary of Crawford's death. It is a brief review of the life and public services of "The Great Captain," as he was called by the Indians, condensed from half a dozen histories:

In 1776 when the United States was born, it was composed of 13 small colonies strung along the Atlantic coast, struggling against invading armies and fleets of Great Britain in front and the ceaseless savagery of merciless Indian foes behind, today, under the banner Betsey Ross made American dominion and enlightenment extend, not only to the Pacific, but to the Orient. From a struggling chain of border settlements we have grown to be a great, if not the premier, World Power.

Under Washington our fathers won independence; under Crawford and Gist, Boone and Kenton, Lewis and Clarke, they won a continent, and in later days the gallant Hawkins and his Fighting Tenth helped to add to it. The American policy of Expansion is as old as the Declaration of Independence.

It is fitting on the anniversary of that day which gave this nation its first and greatest peerless leader, George Washington, that we should

MOUNTAINS BLAZE WITH THE LAUREL.

The Rhododendron Is Also Luxuriant With Promise.

KILLARNEY PARK BEAUTIFUL

Fifteen New Steel Boats Now In Commission at the Indian Creek Valley Resort—Influx of Summer Excursionists Begun With Great Promise.

John M. Stauffer, of Scottdale, of the Indian Creek Valley railroad, in which he is heavily interested with Connellsville people, says that the laurel is in bloom in the mountains and making them lovely with color, while the rhododendron is thicker than he has ever seen it, and with the most alluring prospects for these beautiful mountain flowers to set the landscape bright with color this year. The laurel and rhododendron are two of the most lovely and luxuriant flowers and always a particular attractive feature to the lovers of nature, who are often drawn to mountain trips solely to view these beautiful and luxuriant painters of the landscape.

Killarney park is being further beautified each day and it promises to be the most attractive mountain resort in Western Pennsylvania. The first party of the season has engaged the place, the Masonic fraternity of Dawson, which will travel up there on a special excursion on next Wednesday. There will be from 100 to 150 in the party, and this will be further increased by members of the fraternity from Connellsville and Scottdale.

The lakes of Killarney are now complete for the entertainment of the excursionists, 15 new steel boats having arrived from Salem, O. These are entirely lakeworthy little crafts, which are almost, if not entirely, proof against being overturned. The lake occupies between two and three acres and there are numerous lagoons that give a very lengthy channel for those who delight in boating. This is probably the best boating resort in Western Pennsylvania for equipment and surroundings.

The lake and its tributaries, Mr. Stauffer, says, are so constructed that they are not more than a couple of feet deep at any point, thus assuring safety for all who travel them. The boats will hold from two to seven passengers and will be rented at a very nominal rate.

The hotel and the grounds are rapidly being brought to handsome shape and will be ready for the first party there. The storm throughout the Indian Creek valley was very heavy yesterday, but was almost wholly in the form of rain, which raised the waters of Mill Run and Indian creek very rapidly. Some concrete work on the railroad construction was damaged, but to no great extent.

INDUSTRIES SEEK OUT CONNELLSVILLE

Two Manufacturing Plants Inquire About Opportunities in the Metropolis of The Yough.

Two industries would like to locate in Connellsville, according to communications received by J. Kirk Renner, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The Keystone Tube Works, manufacturers of welded steel tubing, having found their quarters in Pittsburg too cramped and must expand. This firm would employ from 75 to 100 men at the start.

The Fiscal Agency Company of New York writes that a manufacturing establishment making contractors' and public works supplies would like a new location. It employes several hundred skilled mechanics.

Neither of the two firms asks favors of the town. They want information as to the probable cost of sites and other attractions Connellsville might offer as a manufacturing center.

Secretary Renner will call a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the near future. At that time the body will be reorganized.

ASK FOR NEW TRIAL IN THE PFOUTZ CASE

Ruffsdale Man Was Adjudged Sane After a Two Days' Trial at Greensburg.

Robbins & Rankin, attorneys, representing the defendant in the suit of Dilmon Pfoutz, of Ruffsdale, versus D. L. Dillinger, committee, has filed a petition for a new trial in the Westmoreland county court. It is set forth that the verdict was against the evidence in the case, against the charge of the court, and not in accordance with the law governing the matter. Pfoutz was adjudged sane by a jury last Saturday after a two-days' trial.

Weather Prospect Is Better.

CANVASS SHOWS GREAT SUCCESS

So Independence Day Solicitors Will Begin Active Work on Monday.

A MEETING EVERY MORNING

The Committee in Charge of Connellsville Big Celebration Will Assemble Each Day at the Chamber of Commerce—New Committee Named.

Plans for the Independence Day celebration here Monday, July 5, are well under way. Yesterday afternoon a committee canvassed for funds and met with good success. The real work of collecting the sinews of war will not be in until Monday, but an organized effort will be made to secure the necessary financial assistance needed to make the day a big success.

Tomorrow morning the Finance Committee will be given a list of the merchants of town and sub-committees of three will be assigned certain names. If they are not successful the lists will be exchanged until every subcommittee has seen the hard propositions.

Only one new committee was appointed this morning. M. B. Pryce being named Chairman of the Advertising Committee. The presence of the Tenth Regiment Band was assured, while Company D can be expected to fall in line. Other organizations will participate in the parade, which will be held in the morning.

Committee meetings will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms every morning at 10 o'clock from now on while the Executive Committee will be called together within a day or so to take general supervision over the work.

Queen, for the contractors, was in Cumberland and purchased supplies.

NO GREAT DAMAGE LEFT IN TRACK OF TERRIFIC STORM.

Most Serious Part of It Was Its Effect on Business and Damage to Light and Power Wires.

LOPEZ YET IN DANGER.

Spanish Steamer Badly Battered by Squalls Off Fire Island.

NEW YORK, June 11.—(Special.) After a night of struggling against heavy combers off Fire Island shoals wrecking tugs at work on the Antonio Lopez today found the big liner driven fifty feet farther on the bar. The heavy running sea has buried the keel of the liner in the soft sand and the surfs pounding her already begun to spring her plates.

It is not thought the Lopez could now stand the heavy easterly squall and every attempt is being made to release her before the weather grows worse.

FINE MEMORIAL PARK ABOUT BRADDOCK'S GRAVE

Messrs. McCormick and Hadden Announce That Sufficient Aid Has Been Proffered.

UNIONTOWN, June 11.—Braddock Memorial Park, will be the name of the plot where the body of General Braddock is buried and the surrounding territory. James Hadden and W. C. McCormick conceived the idea of a few days ago and decided to interest the public in making it into a public park, and preserving for all time the historic property.

Mr. McCormick stated last night that he had enough tenders of assistance from some of those present last night to buy the four acres surrounding the grave, which can be secured for $1,250. Before that, however, E. S. Hackney, Frank Semans, Jr., Judge J. C. Work and others had interested themselves in the proposition, with instructions to Mr. McCormick to go ahead.

Each contributor will be privileged to plant a tree which shall bear a suitable tablet inscribed with the name of the donor. Congressman A. F. Cooper has promised to secure an allotment of trees from Washington and Senator W. E. Crow has promised to do the same with the State Agricultural Department at Harrisburg.

It is expected that at least fifteen acres will be secured for park purposes and the retention of Braddock's grave assured permanently to this community. Messrs. McCormick and Hadden promise that the details shall be carried out at once. It is probable that the park will be dedicated with appropriate and elaborate ceremony.

INFANT'S BODY FOUND IN GEORGES CREEK

Three Year Old James Winaught Disappeared From Home at 5 O'clock Last Evening.

FAIRCHANCE, June 11.—The body of James Winaught, the 3 year old boy who disappeared about 5 o'clock last evening, was found this morning at 7 o'clock about half a mile below Fairchance in Georges creek. It was discovered by Frank Benson and his son James.

The boy was the son of Zenis Winaught. He fell into the creek while playing near his home. The stream was swollen by the recent rains.

Farmers Are Bewildered.

So much rain lately has caused the farmers to get bewildered on the job, whether the weeds or the crops are going to beat. The odds are for the weeds now.

CONNELLSVILLE THE CENTRE

Other Towns Report Heavy Rains But Not so Severe as the One That Swept Over This Town—All Damage Repaired Today.

Although the fierce electric storm passed over Connellsville by 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon it is still a subject for comment, and many agree that it was one of the most severe mountain storms that has centered over Connellsville. Reports of trees being blown over, signs blown down, some window panes being broken, no serious or extensive damage resulted, while not a single instance of anyone being hurt is reported.

The most serious feature of the storm was its interruption to business, in the way of telephone and light service. The lighting and power service of the West Penn Electric Company was perhaps the hardest hit by the storm, the light and power being out of commission between 12 and 1.30 o'clock. Owing to this interruption, which rendered all the linotype machines and presses idle in The Courier office it was impossible to send out of town customers a complete paper. No mails were missed, however, and everyone received their papers although the task was performed under great difficulties by Courier employes. No news, however, will be missed by the out of town subscribers, as their papers today will contain what appeared in the later editions. The first city edition was sent out incomplete but it was followed a few minutes later with a complete paper, containing all the news up to the day. Although slightly later than usual it was as big as usual and filled with all the happenings.

The storm appeared to center over Connellsville, although heavy rains are reported from Dunbar, Uniontown and as far south as Masontown. A heavy rain fell in Scottdale and through the Indian Creek Valley. A heavy rain above the reservoir caused it to overflow and large quantities of water passed over the spill ways, while some farmers were flooded by the water spreading out over their lands.

Residents of the Pinnacle say that they suffered the heaviest part of the electric storm. The lightning appeared to be much lower than usual, and its blinding flashes caused general alarm.

All four of the West Penn Electric Company's feed wires for lighting and power service were knocked out of commission by the storm, and although but slight damage resulted it required a large force of men and several hours to get them back in shape.

Fred Schmitz had a thrilling experience during the storm at his home on the West Side. He was endeavoring to clean out a small metal sewer, when he received a severe jolt from the lightning. He decided to let the cleaning of the sewer for a dry day.

On Tenth street, the familiar mulberry tree, in front of the Stillwagon property was blown down. It has been there for years.

The rain storm of yesterday caused the river to rise to a point higher than any reached for several weeks past. The gauge this morning stood at 6.60 feet. The rise began yesterday morning when the record was 4.30. By evening the stream had risen to 5.85.

Owing to the muddy waters the river really looks higher than it is. Unless it rains unusually hard and long for the next few days there is no danger of a flood stage being reached.

The mercury dropped over night and this morning it was 68. The two readings yesterday, morning and evening, were 71 and 76.

Geo. Brown, Who Is Said to be Worst Chicken Thief, Is Again Arrested.

George Brown, a negro who, the officers label the worst chicken thief in the county, was in the lockup this morning again. George has figured in several shooting scrapes where the shots were fired in the direction of chicken houses. He was arrested at 2.30 this morning wandering around the streets of town. He was held until Burgess Evans could see the officers who arrested him.

Mike Kuchus of Leisenring was arrested for being drunk and swearing on the streets. He said he had a friend who would pay his fine if he could get word to him. Chief Rottler said he would go to see his friend but Mike thought he ought to be allowed to accompany him. The Chief couldn't see things his way so Mike had to remain until his friend came over.

Russell Thorndell was arrested on West Main street yesterday afternoon for being drunk. He had imbibed so freely that he had to be taken to the lockup in a local grocer's wagon. He was sentenced to 48 hours in the lockup. David Gilpin of Dunbar received a sentence of 48 hours for being drunk while John Bolick drew a sentence of 72 hours for being drunk and disorderly.

Croquet Grounds Damaged; Suspicion Falls on Ball Players.

CONFLUENCE, June 11.—The Confluence Croquet Club received an awful jar when a couple of its members went to their grounds in the park to have their before breakfast game, only to find that some person or persons had been there during the night and had practically wrecked the playing ground. Evidently a spade had been used in digging holes every here and there and most of the guards around the edges had been torn down.

This caused quite a bit of talk around town as it was generally known that the ball players and the croquet people were not on the best of terms because council allowed croquet playing and would not allow base ball in the park. So indignant were some of the croquet members that it is said they were willing to pay $50 for proof that would expose the villians who engineered this scandalous piece of devilry.

This reward was to the liking of the ball players who readily agreed to "blow" on the persons who were implicated as the base ball treasury is very much depleted and $50 wouldn't look bad in it. The C. C. C. refused to show the fifty and the matter was dropped. The grounds are being fixed up. One-fifth of the reward offered has been expended for a set of mallets and balls.

GOOD HOUSE AT THE CHAPERONE.

Miss Benford Stages Attractive Home Talent Comedy at Colonial.

SHE WROTE THE PLAY, TOO

Musical Numbers Were Especially Attractive While Dialogue is Entertaining—Was Given Under Auspices of Y. M. C. A. Ladies' Auxiliary.

A large and fashionable audience witnessed "The Chaperon," presented last evening at the Colonial theatre by Miss Marie L. Benford, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary. The large theatre was filled with an audience who showed its appreciation of the excellent work of the performers by the generous applause which followed each act. At the close of the second act Miss Benford was called before the curtain and given an enthusiastic reception. A bevy of pretty girls with their clever singing and dancing completely captivated the audience. A more attractive cast could not have been chosen by Miss Benford. Their stage manner was easy and graceful and their work throughout the entire performance showed careful rehearsing. One feature of the play was the pretty stage settings by Miss Benford and Mrs. D. B. Purinton.

The work of the entire cast was superior to that of an amateur. The music was catchy and included popular hits. Miss Margaret Geman was particularly good in the stellar role. Walter Schenck as Jonsesy Jones, came in for a share of the applause. His acting was natural and the applause he was greeted was well merited. Mrs. D. B. Purinton as "Mainsy Sue," was especially good. The songs which made a hit were "The Hello Chorus," "Make Believe," "Oh You Kid," "Dreaming," and "Sunbonnet Sue."

The play was written by Miss Marie Benford and is a three act musical comedy. The scene is laid at a house party. Bettie Ellerton has planned the affair but on the day for the arrival of her guests she received a telegram stating that "Aunt Mary," the chaperon, has been taken suddenly ill and is unable to attend. Jack Carter, one of the guests, is finally persuaded to act as chaperon and at once disguises himself as "Aunt Mary." Jack is in love with Margaret Briscoe who is to be one of the house party. While Jack is acting as chaperon Jonsey Jones makes love to Margaret and the situation at times is funny. Jack is finally discovered and the house party breaks up. The work of R. O. Claibough's orchestra with Miss Pearl Keck as pianist, was one of the very best features of the show.

The cast was as follows: Aunt Mary, (Jack Carter,) A. E. Lentner, of Pittsburg; Bob Ellerton, Robert Morton; Jonsey Jones, Walter Schenck; Sleepy Smith, Ernest Murrie, Walter Morris, Stewart Munroe, Willie Westinghouse, Warren Murrie; Sport Thompson, J. R. Davidson; Ned Wilson, Charles Robeson; Margaret Briscoe, Martha Geman; Bettie Ellerton, Norma Woodall; Mabel Dean, Marie Geman; Peggy Walsh, Helen Clark; Billy Randall, Mildred Miller; Eleanor Michener, Mildred Hyatt; Sue Brown, Gerald Reid; Helen Wilson, Margaret Herpich, and Rosebud Latuck, Della McFarland, all well known local talent.

Miss Benford deserves great credit for her clever work as does the entire cast. Connellsville should feel proud of its excellent local talent. The patronesses were members of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary. Those who occupied boxes were Mrs. Sara B. Cochran, Mrs. Isaac Cochran and Mrs. H. J. Bell of Dawson; Mrs. G. J. Humbert and daughters Miss Elise and Gladys Humbert and Miss Elliott of Lisbon, O., Miss Mary Gaither of Greensburg, and Miss Bertha Stratton, of Crawford, N. J., guests of Miss Elise Humbert.

PENSIONS FOR OLD AGE.

England Now Grants a Pension to Citizens Over Seventy.

England's Old Age Pension Law which grants a pension of about $1 a week to every person over 70 years of age who actually need it, went into effect the first of the year and already 300,000 applications for pensions have been filed. This clearly shows the necessity of making provision for old age, and, happily, in this country, it can be done without the aid of a pension. Save a little now out of your weekly or monthly pay; deposit it in the First National Bank of Connellsville at 4 per cent. interest and when old age overtakes you, the money you have saved will allow you to live in comfort independent of the cold charity of individuals or the State.

Not Much Fishing.

The wind up of the trout season promises to be a lively one among the fishermen. The high streams have prevented many from having an outing in that way this season.

Strawberries Plentiful.

Strawberries were never more plentiful or of a finer quality than they are this year in Connellsville.

CROWDS FLOCK TO TO HEAR GOULD TRIAL

Mrs. Gould is Not Nervous and Answers Question in a Bored Sort of Way.

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Enormous crowds jammed the corridors of the court house today when the trial in the separation suit of Helen Gould against her husband, Howard Gould, was resumed. She wore the same striking black costume affected yesterday and showed no traces of nervousness when the crosse-examination was resumed. Attorney Nicholl, counsel for Gould, demanded how much she paid for the Blue Gap farm in Virginia. In a bored sort of way the witness said she thought $38,000. When she was asked if she had not stripped Castle Gould to furnish the farm house she said no, but had taken a few "odds and ends."

When asked her age her attorney objected and the objection was sustained.

"Were you ever connected with the Wild West show?

"No."

"Didn't you travel with the show?"

"I was once the guest of Miss Artie Cody."

"Didn't you go where the show went?"

"No."

"Are you sure you did not travel with the show with Mr. Cody and Mr. Salisbury after Miss Cody left her father?"

"Mr. Cody was my manager and I went to see him on business."

"Did you visit Vienna with Mr. Cody?"

"I don't recall."

The same answer was made concerning several cities named.

BURGESS EVANS AS PEACEMAKER

He Causes Reconciliation Between Snydertown Man and His Wife.

Burgess J. L. Evans was instrumental in securing a reconciliation between D. H. Winebrenner, a Baltimore & Ohio engineer, and his wife, after the woman is alleged to have planned suicide.

Winebrenner met his son who had purchased a bottle of carbolic acid and was taking it to the Winebrenner home in Snydertown with him. It is believed Mrs. Winebrenner contemplated suicide.

Winebrenner sent Constable Wilson out to Snydertown to investigate while he went after Burgess Evans and Chief Rettler. The couple met down town last evening and effected a reconciliation.

For First Time in 18 Months Leisenring No. 1 Makes Six Days.

For the first time in 18 months the Leisenring No. 1 plant of the H. C. Frick Coke Company is operating six day this week. It has been running five day most of the time since the business depression set in but this week Superintendent C. B. Franks was directed to work six days.

The additional day this week, and it will probably be continued, will mean considerable difference in the size of the pay checks by the end of the month.

TWENTY NEW HOUSES.

Activity Continues at Growing Coal Town of Osborne.

Work on the construction of 20 new houses for the company has been started by the contractors, Cattrell Brothers of Amsterdam, Ohio. Ten houses have been completed. Aside from the building operations of the company, a number of other buildings are contemplated for residence and business purposes.

John Rowan, one of the well known young men of Vanderbilt, after a four weeks' illness, passed to the great beyond Wednesday evening. The direct cause of his death was blood poison. The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon from the Christian Church at 2 P. M. The oration will be delivered by the pastor of the church Rev. A. C. Young. The interment will follow in the cemetery at Dickerson Run.

Mr. Rowan was born near Vanderbilt, December 28, 1875. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rowan. Since the death of his parents, a few years ago, Mr. Rowan has been to the surviving brothers and sisters a father. His timely advice will be greatly missed and the position which he held in the family after the departure of his parents will be a link that will be hard to fill.

For six years he has been a devout member of the Christian Church and was always present at each service. He was a member of Bloomington Lodge No. 728 I. O. O. F., being Vice Grand of that organization at the time of his death. He was also a member of Dawson Council No. 75, Jr. O. U. A. M. He held for a number of years the position of carpenter foreman at the Paul repair shops of the W. J. Rainey estate. Mr. Rowan is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Maud Osborne, Lillian, Martha and Anna Rowan and a half sister, Mrs. Emma Blackstone, and Charles Rowan. The surviving members of the family have the sympathy of the people of the entire community in the loss of one who was so dear to them all.

Patrick F. Drew, Former Well Known Baltimore & Ohio Employe, Died Yesterday.

After a lingering illness of complication of diseases Patrick F. Drew, aged 64 years, seven months and 24 days, died yesterday afternoon at his late home in West Murphy avenue. ## A REMARKABLE ECZEMA CURE.

No More Hopeless Cases of This Dreaded Disease.

Eczema has long been one of the most dreaded of diseases, not only from the suffering and humiliation it entails, but also because of the difficulty hitherto found in curing it. Doctors have failed, and the desperate patients have resorted to much-advertised "specialized" remedies, only to meet with disappointment. Now all this is changed.

A sure and speedy cure for eczema—absolutely untailing, as thousands are ready to testify—has at last been found. Dr. Taylor's Eczema Remedy has established itself solely on its merits as an unfailible blood purifier and skin cleanser. Its use has enormously increased within a brief period, as its efficacy has been learned.

For not alone is this remedy effectual in the worst cases of eczema, but it is probably the quickest and surest remover of all skin blemishes, such as pimples, black heads, acne, herpes, rash, barber itch, etc., that has ever been discovered. Often one application, over night, clears the complexion.

A free descriptive booklet is issued by the Dr. Taylor Remedy Co., Philadelphia, and the remedy and booklet can be obtained at and at all first-class druggists.

VANDERBILT.

MEYERSDALE, June 10.—Sparks Brothers' shows arrived here from Somerset this morning and pitched their tents in Younkin's park. At the time set for the parade this section was visited by one of the most severe wind and hailing storms of the season, followed by a steady downpour of rain, which continued for nearly two hours. Later the rain ceased, the sun began to shine, and the parade took place. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, a good-sized crowd attended both performances.

During the storm Wednesday afternoon the barn of William Beal, on High street, was struck by lightning and almost totally consumed by flames. Only for the speedy downpour of rain and the prompt arrival of the fire department, Mr. Beal's dwelling would have gone up in smoke.

Charles Heath, a former well known resident of this place, but now of Rockwood, was shaking hands with friends here Wednesday.

C. W. Mauk and William Lint left Wednesday morning for Connellsville. The former returned in the evening, and the latter went on to Braznell, where he will visit his father, H. H. Lint, who is manager of a large mercantile establishment there.

Mrs. E. Huggins, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. L. Morris for the past month, returned to her home at Mount Braddock, W. Va., Wednesday.

Among the out-of-town visitors to this place Wednesday were: W. M. Sloan Windber, H. H. Donner, Berlin; and P. R. Lyon, Somerset, general superintendent of the Somerset Coal Company.

The attraction at the Silver Ball Park Saturday will be the home team vs. Salisbury. In the evening there will be a dance and picnic for the benefit of the baseball association.

Miss Mary Hardy and Mrs. S. M. Bittner of this place, and H. G. Trossler of Deal, left Wednesday evening to attend the Young Peoples' Association and Sunday School Convention of the Evangelical Association, to be held in Johnstown this week. Mrs. Hardy is the secretary of the association in the local conference.

George Ickes has taken possession and is now in full charge of the Hay House, Salisbury' best known hotel, which he has leased, the former proprietor, C. A. Bender, having removed to town and taken possession of the dwelling vacated by Mr. Ickes.

PERRYOPOLIS.

PERRYOPOLIS, June 11.—The W. C. T. U. held a farewell reception at the home of Mrs. A. Byers, in honor of their President, Mrs. Lulu Luce. After the Floral Mission services this evening in the M. E. Church, Mrs. Luce will go to Washington county where she will join her husband and family for the summer vacation.

Miss Eden Hough and sister of Fayette City, are here this week as students at the Normal.

The past three weeks have brought about many changes at the First National bank. The black walnut fixtures, cashier's room, public room, extensive glass front and other necessities installed, by Frank Luce, and refrescher by J. W. French of Dawson, have added greatly to the convenience as well as appearance, and our people now enjoy an up to date banking institution.

Mr and Mrs. Frank Townsend left last evening for points up the Yough.

A public reception for Rev. M. S. Eldir, the pastor recently chosen by the Christian Church Board, will be held Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Enlow of the M. E. Church, will deliver the address of welcome and members will furnish a short program.

Miss Gamble's class recital today at 2:30 is the second of the series and the students are showing much improvement.

MEYERSDALE.

VANDERBILT, June 11.—J. C. Moore is having a new iron fence built in front of his residence.

Lillie Means and Stella Dunlap have returned home after a few days' visit at Elizabeth.

Samuel Harbaugh was the guest of relatives at Scottdale Wednesday.

Anna Mae Laughbrey is visiting relatives in Uniontown.

An error in the Vanderbilt items yesterday gave C. W. Rush of Dawson, as being appointed borough clerk, instead, he was appointed borough solicitor.

George Shickler and A. S. Pollak were recent Uniontown business callers.

The Vanderbilt boys lost their first game of baseball this season on Wednesday when they played Broad Ford. The score was 12-11. Vanderbilt had only two scores until the last inning when they run in nine.

CONNELLSVILE'S FIRST AND GREATEST CITIZEN.

Both Connellsville and Uniontown are making great preparations to celebrate with sound and fury the nation's natal day, yet we venture to say that few people in this town or this county remember that this is the anniversary of the martyrdom of a Pioneer and Patriot whose efforts for Civilization and Independence were worthy of honorable mention in the early records of the American Congress and in the deathless pages of American history.

We read in our news columns today that patriotic Uniontown citizens have contributed $1,250 for the purchase of the ground which contains the dust of General Edward Braddock, a British commander in whose ill-fated expedition Washington served, for the purpose of preserving and beautifying that historic spot.

Yet the memory of Colonel William Crawford, the friend and familiar of Washington and one of his trusted lieutenants on many Revolutionary battlefields, a prominent citizen of Western Pennsylvania in its formative period and a commander who died in its defense, remains unhonored in the town which he founded.

The Courier has persistently pointed out this lamentable fact to the people of Connellsville as yet without arousing any active efforts toward remedying a discreditable condition, especially discreditable since a number of Colonel Crawford's descendants are citizens here and hereabouts.

Monuments, modest to be sure but nevertheless expressive, have been erected to Crawford's memory in two Ohio counties, one in Wyandot, on the spot where he was burned at the stake, and the other in Crawford county, which was named after him. An annual gathering is held on the banks of Tymochtee creek, the place of martyrdom, by the citizens of that part of Ohio, on each anniversary of his death, for the sole purpose of keeping alive the memory of Crawford's patriotic achievements. Connellsville has no monuments and has seldom had any anniversaries.

In recent years there has been an aroused public feeling concerning the memories of the pioneers and patriots who have made history. For many years after the Civil War, the attention of the country, particularly of the North, was devoted to erecting monuments and embalming in history the names and fames of those who fought in that sanguinary and fratricidal struggle. The memories of the Revolution were forgotten in newer achievements. The native justice of the people is awakening to the propriety of honouring the Builders as well as the Preservers of the Nation. Connellsville should make an organized and systematic effort to do her part in this patriotic work.

Some private efforts were put forth during the past year to obtain a Federal or State appropriation for a monument to Crawford to be erected here, but the poor state of the public finances made the matter practically hopeless at that time and it was held in abeyance. Congressman Acheson introduced a bill in the preceding Congress appropriating $50,000 for this purpose, but it struck the snag of hard times and was not reported out of committee. There is, however, no reason to despair that an appropriation will eventually be made. In the meantime, the formation of a monument association, or the taking up of the matter by one of our civic or quasi-civic bodies might be the means of promoting the project. It has been suggested to us by some leading citizens of the county that a liberal sum would be subscribed here at home if the matter were properly presented and pressed.

Greater Connellsville was founded by Crawford. It was named after Zachariah Connell, a thrifty civilian who laid out this side of the river in town lots after Crawford by his settlement on the West Side had established the nucleus of the town. Had Crawford settled at Dawson, it would have been the big town of the Youghiogheny valley instead of Connellsville.

Colonel Crawford was the pioneer coal operator of the Connellsville region. Washington wrote in his journal as early as 1770 concerning a visit to "Captain Crawford's coal mine," on the east side of the river. This coal was that outcropping just below the B. & O. station. It has been worked until recent years. When we think of Crawford's services and sacrifices in the vanguard of the pioneers and pathfinders who rescued this magnificent coal field from savage hands and opened it to civilization and development, when we think of the millions that have been made out of it and the millions yet to come, it seems that those who have made those millions would not hesitate to contribute an infinitesmial tithe thereof to the worthy project of honoring and preserving the memory of the First Operator.

A magnificent Crawford monument may be had at Connellsville for the intelligent and systematic asking.

UNIONTOWN'S LATE REPENTANCE.

Connellsville's threat of withdrawal from Uniontown's Teachers' Institute is bringing salty tears to the editorial cheeks of Uniontown's haughty press. The Standard says:

The editor of The Courier still wants the Teachers' County Institute and threatens to secede if he doesn't get one. Be careful, Henry! Think of the punishment meted out to people who have attempted secession in this country and at what awful cost! Now we will permit the Sunday Schools of the county to hold a convention in Connellsville, June 15th and 16th, and if we hear from reliable authority that you are present at every session, standing well to the front and joining heartily in singing, "I'm glad I'm in this Army," and such other songs as may be selected for the occasion, we may let you have the County Institute some time. Personally, we would be willing to go farther to satisfy your longing for an institute, but we do not feel that the superintendent, teachers and directors would endorse our action.

We cannot be bribed by such promises. They come too late. Mud Island, the despised and rejected, will paddle her own educational canoe and have her own institutes. The biggest and best town in the county will no longer play second fiddle to Uniontown just because the latter has a Court House, a Jail and a lot of our Undesirable Citizens resident therein.

The worm has turned!

A receiver has been appointed for The People's Tribune. We begin to suspect that Colonel Likins shook the dust of Fayette county from his Kentucky feet at the psychological moment; and that the people-who sought his hopeful scalp, and thought they had it, have openly grasped a despairing situation. But there are vast possibilities in reorganization. If the unfortunate stockholders of this unfortunate paper fight long enough and bitterly enough among themselves, somebody will eventually get a cheap newspaper.

The lake lock system has received a rude shock in Canada.

That average furnace slip is not one of the slips that doesn't count. It usually takes a heavy toll of death.

"Just because Connellsville cannot have the teachers' institute it proposes to break away from the county school system. Next thing we know Mud Island will be urging the formation of a new county with IT at the county seat," says the Uniontown Herald. The idea isn't a bad one. We'll think it over.

The innocent clothes prop is a deadly enemy when it gets the drop on you.

"If the Connellsville Courier believes in mergers let it advocate the merger of its Fourth of July celebration with that of Uniontown in the interest of joint success. We don't believe in side shows," says the Uniontown Herald. Neither do we. Come to the Center show and see the four-ringed Circus.

Senator Aldrich announces that the end of the Tariff debate is in sight, but has he consulted the Talkfest?

The two foreigners who were accused of robbery and admitted it, took it all back by advice of their lawyer, and the Grand Jury set them free. They didn't understand that in law we never admit anything.

The feminine bargain fiend who sent to a mail order house for "10 yards of remnant silk at 20 cents per yard," and received 10 yards of silk thread, is excusable. The offer came from Morgantown which has never until now been suspected of wickedness.

The wet weather is very trying to the baseball fans.

The yellow writers who are clamshould not forget that under a new law Gypsy bands are not permitted in wanderlust around and wear out the country roads and the patience of the people without paying a license tax. It is a question whether they should be licensed at all or not. It is reasonably certain that any license fee exacted from them will be collected back from the community which is favored with their presence.

It has remained for Connellsville femininity to furnish the latest Marathon stunt.

The yellow journals who are clamoring for war with Japan should be tied in a bunch and dispatched to Colonel Roosevelt with instructions to the latter to let 'em fight the Jungle tribes until their belligerency is worked off and their dispositions have been reduced to normal.

The thrifty man has paid his taxes.

Senator Chauncey Depew advises young men to get married. Chauncey took a chance when he was an old man, and he doesn't seem to have been a loser. His colleague from New York wasn't so lucky.

That was a sweet verdict against the Sugar Trust.

Brownsville is demonstrating that Church League baseball is an undesirable proposition.

The missing child is getting almost as numerous as the missing word. There is always a reward for the latter, but seldom for the former, yet there is no comparison to be drawn as to their importance from the standpoint of humanity, to say nothing of mother-love.

When in doubt take a day off and mind your own business.

Clothes make the woman, but Burgess Evans fears they do not always make good women, and concludes that some good clothes ought to be assessed goodly fines.

If Connellsville and Uniontown do not both make it lively on the Glorious Fourth, it will not be from any lack of preliminary whooping up.

A talkative man seldom selects his wife for his audience.

A Saint Louis meat inspector has raided an official stench which smells to Washington. The people will ask to be shown.

SCOTTDALE MAN HAS SUNSTROKE.

William Johnson Overcome By Attack Following One of Last Year.

SCOTTDALE STUDENTS ACTIVE

Will Town People Have Leading Parts at Mt. Pleasant Commencement. Several Real Estate Transfers Recorded Show Improving Conditions.

SCOTTDALE, June 11.—William Johnson, an aged and well known resident of the Pittsburg street extension, is lying at his home suffering from the effects of a sunstroke, which he sustained a few days ago and which has caused great uneasiness among his friends and relatives.

Mr. Johnson who is about 70 years of age and active went to Owensdale to hoe some potatoes he has in charge there, and it was noticed that he was hoeing all through the patch, keeping steadily and methodically at work, but not following the rows of potatoes.

Nathaniel King found him in this condition and Mr. Johnson was removed to his home. He was in a very weakened condition and wandering in his mind, although he said he felt pretty well. He was put to bed and medical attention secured. It is believed that he was overcome by the heat, as last summer he suffered from a sunstroke. Last night Mr. Johnson rested better and this morning he said he remembered of being sick and that the heat had overcome him.

Scottdale's Prominent Part.

Scottdale young people took a leading part in the week's commencement exercises at the Mt. Pleasant Institute. In the graduating class were Miss Pearl De Etta Breegle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Breegle, and Miss Irma Dick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Dick. They also took part in the class play, and Miss Breegle in the contest for vocal, instrumental music and declamation. Miss Bessie Colburn and Miss Azalea Fretts won prizes in piano and vocal music. Rev. E. C. Runkle, pastor of the Scottdale Baptist Church, delivered the address to the class on Commencement Day.

Registrar's Report For Month.

Dr. N. E. Sisley, Registrar for Scottdale Borough and East Huntingdon township, has sent his report of births and deaths to the Department of Vital Statistics at Harrisburg. The births in Scottdale from May 13 to June 1 were 15 and in East Huntingdon township from May 5 to June 1, 186. The deaths in Scottdale from May 17 to June 1, 69. The birth rate is keeping ahead of the death rate about double.

Brown, a New Coach.

Sam Brown who was catcher with the Boston Nationals last year, and who is here employed in the Frick offices, has been engaged as captain and coach of the Scottdale baseball team. Brown is a first class player and will appear for the first time with the team here tomorrow afternoon at the game at Ellsworth park. The Scottdale team naturally feels that it is in great luck to have a player like Brown with them.

Townsend-Culler.

Announcements were issued yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Pressley Culler of the marriage of their daughter, Olive Blanch, and John Luce Townsend, which took place at the home of the bride's parents yesterday, with Rev. R. B. Mansell, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church officiating. The bride is one of the most popular girls in Scottdale, while the groom, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Townsend, of Perryopolis, has been a well known resident of Scottdale for some years. After a wedding trip they will be "at home" here after July 15.

Y. M. C. A. Reception.

Gone to Colorado.

W. L. Weaver, a Mt. Pleasant township boy, who has been special teacher in writing in the Scottdale public schools, has gone to Colorado Springs, Colo., for his summer vacation.

Storm Brought Fierce Rain.

The storms about Scottdale on Thursday were marked by heavy rains, that washed the roads and fields and brought all the streams up very rapidly. The moon storm came very suddenly, and while not accompanied by much electrical disturbance as was reported from Connellsville, did everything possible to make itself felt from the point of a downpour of rain. There were two extremely heavy rains, and the weather was very much cooler this morning.

THREE SUSPECTS NOW UNDER ARREST

Charged With Brutal Crime In Somerset County—One of Them Is a Negro.

SOMERSET, Pa., June 10.—Constable William Judy and several deputies have been working on the assault case at Belmont, a mining town in the Jenner field, and have captured three of the persons who assaulted Mrs. Minnie Ashe, Mrs. Mary Ober and Miss Minnie Ober early on Sunday morning.

Joe Katzak, an Italian, and Corn Washington, a negro, were captured yesterday and today two other Italians, Dominck Petro and Tony Renco, were captured but the women were unable to identify them. Katzak and the colored woman, Cora Washington were identified and are being held by the officers. It is said the Washington woman was disguised in man's clothing when the outrage was perpetrated.

Ira Ellis, the negro who fled when he learned that the officers were looking for him. It was stated yesterday that Ellis was hiding in a mine near Jenners but this statement has been declared false and it is believed that Ellis boarded a B. & O. train and escaped. An investigation will be made tomorrow to learn whether a man answering to the description of Ellis was seen by any trainmen.

It will be remembered that about 1:30 o'clock on Sunday morning five masked men forced their way into a house near Belmont and beat and abused three women, Mrs. Minnie Ashe, aged 90 years, Mrs. Minnie Ober, her daughter, aged 66 years, and Mrs. Ober's daughter, Miss Minnie Ober. The women were struck repeated blows, were hurled forcibly about the room and finally lighted candles were held to their feet. The robbers finally tied their victims hand and foot with picture wire and left, having secured only $3.50. A certified check for $500 was tendered to the robbers by the women but they refused to accept it stating that it might lead to their identification.

This was probably the most atrocious outrage in Somerset county in two decades.

"You don't seem surprised over the babies," said the nurse.

"Surprised? Why, my dear woman, I'm getting used to twins now," answered Calvey. The twins are the third pair to arrive at his home. They bring up the list of children born to Mr. and Mrs. Calvey to eighteen, fifteen of whom are living.

Hyomei Is Guaranteed to Cure Catarrh or Money Back.

When you suffer horribly from catarrh and are constantly sniffling and snuffing, hawking and spitting, and doing other disgusting things, remember there is a certain cure, called Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me), which is guaranteed to cure.

Hyomei will give joyful relief to any catarrh sufferer in five minutes and it gives remarkable relief to consumptives.

Hyomei is medicated air prepared from the extracts taken from the giant eucalyptus trees of inland Australia, where catarrh or consumption is never known.

You breathe in this healing and antiseptic air through an inhaler and this air, with its peculiar soothing properties, passing over the inflamed and germ ridden membrane (for catarrh is a germ disease), kills the germ, allays the inflammation, and in a short time completely cures the disease.

A complete Hyomei outfit, which includes a hard rubber inhaler that will last a life time, and a bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1.00, extra bottles cost 50 cents. Sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Connellsville by A. A. Clarke who guarantees it on the money back plan.

TAFT LAMENTS HIS MANY POUNDS.

Refers Touchingly to Thin Men in a Talk on Aviation.

PRAISES MODESTY OF WRIGHTS

Declares Their Americanism as Illustrated by Their Accomplishments Is Something to Be Proud of—Presents Medals to Them.

Washington, June 10.—The appreciation, good will and congratulations of the American people were extended to Wilbur and Orville Wright, the American visitors, by the president of the United States.

The occasion was the presentation of the gold medals awarded to the Wright brothers by the Aero Club of America to commemorate the conquest of the air. In the presence of distinguished statesmen, foreign diplomats, the members of the cabinet, noted scientists and prominent aeronauts and aviators, the two inventors of the first successful flying machine heavier than air received the first public recognition of their achievements from their fellow-countrymen.

President Taft, in handing the medals to the brothers, expressed keen admiration for their work and ventured the belief that their flying machine will be the basis for the future aerial craft and made the prophecy that the dawn of the age of flight is here. The Wrights were introduced to the president by Representative Herbert Parsons of New York, who paid a glowing tribute to their personal qualifications. A. Holland Forbes, winner of the recent international balloon race and acting president of the Aero Club of America, turned the medals over to the president on behalf of the Aero club.

Miss Wright Complimented.

Miss Catherine Wright, sister of the aeroplanists, accompanied her brothers and was quite as much lionized. After President Taft had congratulated the Wright brothers individually he turned to Miss Wright and said: "And I want to congratulate the most important member of the family."

In presenting the medals to the Wright brothers President Taft said:

"I esteem it a great honor and an opportunity to present these medals to you as an evidence of what you have done. I am glad—perhaps at a belayed hour—to show that in America it is not true that 'a prophet is not without honor save in his own country.' It is especially gratifying thus to note a great step in human discovery by paying honor to men who bear it so modestly. You made this discovery by a course that we of America like to feel is distinctively American—by keeping your nose right at the job until you had accomplished what you had determined to do.

A Matter of Avoirdupois.

"It has been said that this is the first presidential recognition of aeronautics since President Washington. Well, all I have to say is that I had a predecessor who, if aeronautics had proceeded as far when he left office as they have today, would not only have gone down under the water in a submarine boat but would have gone up into the air in a flying machine. No one had a more earnest interest, a more active interest and a greater desire to see into the things that make for progress than my predecessor.

"Mr. Justice Brown, in commenting on the law of patents, which is supposed to follow the proper rule in awarding merit to discovery, says that in the patent law it is the last step that counts—that is, the difference between failure and success, and that step you gentlemen have taken. I doubt not that whatever improvements are hereafter made for sailing the air in machines heavier than the air, principles that you have discovered and applied and the method of their application will be the basis of all successful ones.

Flying Machines in War.

"I don't like to think, and I decline to think, that these instrumentalities that you have invented for human use are to be confined in their utility to war. I presume that they will have great value in war and I suppose that all of us representatives of the various governments ought to look at this matter, following the rule of governments of today, from the standpoint of their utility in war, but I sincerely hope that these machines will be increased in usefulness to such a point that even those of us who now look at them as not for us may count on their ability to carry more than 'thin' passengers in times of peace.

"Many great discoveries have come by accident. Men working in one direction have happened on a truth that developed itself into a great discovery, but you gentlemen have illustrated the other and on the whole much more commendable method. You planned what you wished to find and then you worked it out until you found it."

Leprosy Martyr Is Dead.

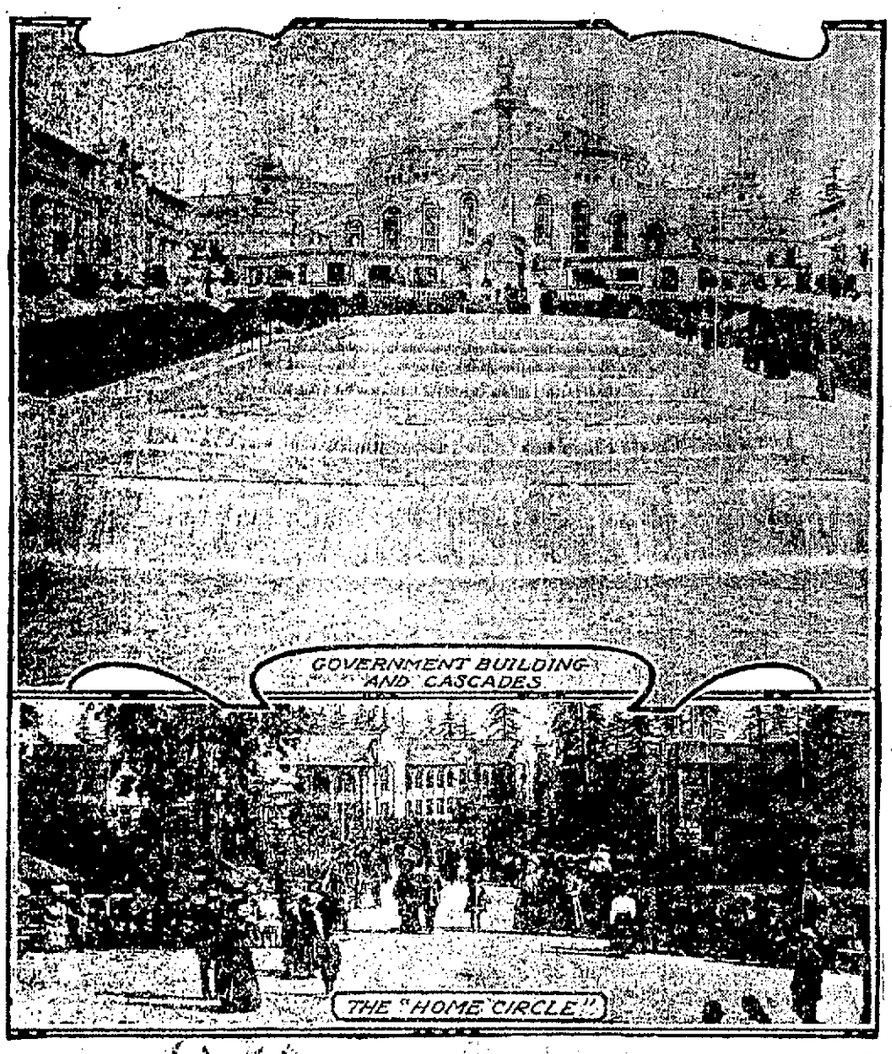
Honolulu, June 11.—Father Clement, who came to Hawaii from France with Father Damien in 1863 to devote himself to work among the lepers in the Molokai colony, is dead.

In this world one must be a little less kind to be kind enough.

SNAPSHOTS OF THE SEATTLE EXPOSITION, WHERE WEST'S WONDERS ARE ON VIEW



The success of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition from the first has far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the people of the Pacific coast, and the big fair promises to eclipse anything ever held west of the Mississippi except the St. Louis fair. Indeed, the promoters of the Seattle fair are not sure that their show will not draw more people than did the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. On the opening day of the Seattle Exposition there were 89,500 persons on the grounds, and the attendance has steadily kept up. Excursion trains are daily pouring vast multitudes into Seattle, and as the summer advances and the farming contingent sees its way clear to take a holiday there is little doubt that the crowds will increase. As the prosperity of the west is on the up grade and the prospect for crops is excellent, there is no reason why the Seattle show should not reap a harvest of dollars to the very day of its close. Those who have visited every big fair since the Philadelphia Centennial have nothing but praise for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. The mining exhibits far surpass anything of the kind ever assembled at a similar event. One of the accompanying photographs shows the Cascades, one of the chief wonders of the fair.

ANOTHER COALITION FORMED

Object Is Adoption of Income Tax Amendment.

Washington, June 11.—Encouraged by what they interpret to be a weakening of the opposition to an income tax amendment, another move to form a coalition between the progressive Republicans and Democrats has begun in the senate.

The program outlined is that Senator Bailey shall present his income tax amendment and a motion to amend is to be made by Mr. Cummins to reduce the proposed tax from 3 to 2 per cent and to include a provision for a tax upon the income of corporations. It is said that Mr. Bailey will accept both of these changes and that all of those who favor an income tax will unite on the amended measure.

Members of the finance committee deny that the tacit indorsement by certain Republican leaders of the proposed tax on dividends of corporations is intended as a compromise with the income tax advocates, but say that it is offered merely to satisfy those who believe that the import duties to be provided by the pending bill will be insufficient for the government needs.

The outcome is uncertain, but the indications point, it is said, to the reference of the whole subject to the judiciary committee with instructions to report at the next session.

MAGAZINE PROTECTED

United States Court Issues an Order in Odd Case.

New York, June 11.—Judge Lacombe of the United States district court has issued an order to show cause, returnable June 18, directed to Ramon Bengoechea, consul general of Guatemala in New York, instructing him to show cause why an injunction should not be issued restraining him from buying up and suppressing the June number of Uncle Sam's Magazine, a monthly periodical appearing in this city.

In the June number there appeared an article giving various instances of the alleged maltreatment of American citizens in Guatemala by local officials and officers of the army. This publication was annoying to the consul general and his agents are stated to have gone about buying up the magazine from the public stands. The proprietors declared that this act damaged their advertisers in that it curtailed their circulation and the order was issued on this score.

Race Problem Solution.

Lincoln, Neb., June 11.—At the annual commencement exercises of the University of Nebraska Senator-elect John Sharp Williams of Mississippi suggested as a solution of the race problem the distribution of the negroes between various sections.

REWARDS VETERAN TEACHER

Despite Refusal of University to Care For Him.

Washington, June 11.—George Washington university of this city has been dropped from the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching by the action of the executive committee of the foundation.

This action is due in part, at least, it is said, to the fact that the university recently retired two of its professors without giving them any warning that such purpose was contemplated and depriving one of them thereby of the benefits which would have come to him later of being placed on the Carnegie teachers' pension fund. An investigation was made by the officers of the foundation into conditions at George Washington and the executive committee, believing, it was authoritatively stated, that the university had not acted right by the two retired professors and further that the university was trying to cover too broad a field with the financial backing at its command, terminated its relation as an accepted institution with the foundation.

In spite of the fact that he had not fulfilled the requirements which would have entitled him regularly to a teachers' pension, Dr. J. MacBride Sterrett, one of the retired professors, who had been a teacher in philosophy in the university for the past seventeen years, was made an exception by the executive committee and granted a pension.

MEAT INSPECTOR QUITS IN DISGUST.

Revelation Equaling That of "The Jungle" Made by Him.

MEAT INSPECTION IS A FARCE

I. F. Harms of St. Louis Resigns as Meat Inspector in East St. Louis and Makes Startling Revelation of Conditions in the Packing Houses.

St. Louis, June 11.—After eighteen months' service as a United States meat inspector in East St. Louis packing houses J. F. Harms has resigned, he says, writing a letter to Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson demanding an investigation of the meat inspection system at the national stock yards.

Harms asserts that he resigned because he could not tolerate conditions. Asserting that "United States inspected and passed" as it appears on products of all the packing houses is meaningless because of the inadequacy of the inspection, Harms in his letter says:

"The inspection at the national stock yards, Illinois, is costing the people approximately $100,000 a year and it is not actually worth $1 to them. For when the word is passed from the inspector in charge to the inspectors actually doing the work on the floors that they are getting too many condemned animals and to change the grading it means that the whole thing is a farce. Mr. Secretary, the packers are getting today from 70 to 80 per cent of what ought to be condemned and destroyed.

Here's a Revelation.

"I have seen from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds of lard spill and run into an open sewer in the floor, the sewer outlet quickly blocked and said lard taken up from the floor and out of the sewer, both of which were unclean and unsanitary. And your doctors passed same to the packers over the protest of the inspector on that floor and it went to the public marked 'U. S. Inspected and Passed.'"

"Many of the charges, I am sure, cannot be true," said Chief Inspector Clancy. "He has not complained to me about my decisions nor to my assistant, Dr. William H. Meadors. We are ready to be investigated any time."

Another excerpt from the letter says:

"On April 1, 1909, Drs. Graham and Stingley retained and condemned eleven beef carcasses for emaciation. On April 2 Drs. Clancy and Meadors released six of said carcasses to the packers. The remaining five were tanked and destroyed.

"On the morning of April 2 I was in a cooler and a packing company superintendent came in. When his attention was called to the carcasses he said: 'Yes, they are a bad lot and had I been on the floor last evening I would not have let them come down.'

"Men holding good positions with the packers see and know these things and acknowledge they were wrong. I have seen animals in a dying condition dragged into the killing beds and marked 'U. S. Inspected and Passed.'

Filthy Instances Cited.

"Some of the filthiest things imaginable are practiced in the sausage department, such as using bladders for casings without thorough washing or cleaning, the use of filthy tripe in sausage, the use of slimy hog stomachs for casings or containers, the using of meats that have fallen on the floor and are taken up and used without any pretense of cleaning.

"These are all permitted by those in charge. If an inspector calls their attention to any of the wrong he is told as I was that the people who eat such stuff are too lazy to prepare anything for themselves honor the memory of that pioneer and patriot, William Crawford.

THRILLING STORY OF COLONEL CRAWFORD

Their names are indissolubly linked together in the nation's history. In life they were bound together by the ties of friendship; in death their memories linger around the cradle of the nation's birth. Together they surveyed lands for others and then for themselves; together they explored the wilderness, together they fought the French and Indians, and together they battled against the British. They were lifelong partners in business which was often public as it was private.

Colonel William Crawford lives in history. The story of his life fills volumes and has been fully told by able writers. The picture of him drawn tonight must necessarily be little more than a mere sketch, a glance at his character, his public service and his tragic death. He was a self-made man. His opportunities in early life were very limited, yet his letters betray a liberal education for the times. He was taught the art of surveying by Washington himself. He was a soldier, a statesman and a good business man. His judgment was esteemed by his neighbors because it was calm and clear and keen. We have the testimony of Washington, embodied in a message to congress, that he was "an officer of much care and prudence, brave, active and capable." These qualities combined to raise him to the dignity of a military commander in time of war and a presiding justice in time of peace. They were qualities which attracted Washington to him. The two might have been Napoleons of finance had they lived in the present age. In Washington's journal, under date of October 14, 1770, we find this entry: "At Captain Crawford's all this day. Went to see a coal mine not far from his house, on the banks of the river." It would seem that Crawford was the pioneer coal operator of Western Pennsylvania, and, singular to say, one of his descendants was a pioneer coke operator of the Connellsville region. Had Crawford lived in a later age he might have been a coke magnate, but judging from his insatiable appetite for the acquisition of lands, an appetite which was shared and stimulated by Washington, one or both of them would have given some of our capitalists a hard chase for coal land dominion in Washington and Greene counties.

William Crawford was born in Frederick county, Virginia, now Berkley county, West Virginia, in the same year with his illustrious friend, George Washington, 1732. His father was a farmer who died when William was a child of four years, leaving one other child, also a son, named Valentine. His mother was a woman with strength of character as well as of hands. She married Richard Stephenson, by whom she had five sons, John, Hugh, Richard, James and Marcus, and one daughter who died in childhood. The sons all grew to stalwart manhood and were remarkable for personal vigor, size and manly endurance. They lived with their mother, now a second-time widow, when in 1751 they became acquainted with the youthful Washington, surveyor at that time to Lord Fairfax. The acquaintance ripened into friendship never broken. When fame and fortune smiled upon Washington in after years he never forgot the sons of the Widow Stephenson. Especially did he prove the warm and steadfast friend of William Crawford, his boyhood companion at the age of 17.

The childhood home of William Crawford was that of the pioneer, and a pioneer he remained until the last. His education was limited. Living on the edge of the wilderness, far from the centers of population, he knew little of the refinements of society; but if he was not polished he was educated in the rough but effective school of necessity. He grew to manhood apt in expedients, generous in disposition, strong in mind as well as in body. He had a firm grasp upon himself. In the face of danger, he was cool, calm and dauntless. It is not strange that he became an active and influential citizen.

Colonel William Crawford's wife was Hannah Vance. Her brother was the father of the Vance family whose heads settled in Tyrone township and were prominent in its affairs for upwards of a century. She bore Crawford three children, namely: John, a son, who accompanied his father on the Sandusky expedition, and who escaped, and subsequently settled on the lands down the Ohio at Brushy run; Sarah, wife of Major William Harrison, and Polly, wife of William McCormick. The histories all agree upon this, yet there has always been a tradition that another daughter, Anne, was the wife of Zachariah Connell, founder of Connellsville. This is an error. She was the wife of James Connell, and the daughter of William McCormick. She is mentioned in Crawford's will, but not as his daughter. The will disposes of a portion of his estate to his three sequentia certain legacies to "Anne Connell and her children." This confirms the assumption of relationship given here and vouched for by Butterworth.

Major Harrison was killed in the Sandusky affair and his family scattered. The Connells and McCormicks are still in evidence in and around Connellsville. Valentine Crawford, a brother of William Crawford, settled in Bullskin township shortly after William came here. Valentine acted as agent for Washington's property here and it was under his supervision that the Perryopolis mill was built. He had two sons, one of whom died here and the other, William, who perished with his uncle in the Sandusky expedition. Valentine died shortly afterwards. The Valley of the Virginia seemed to contain other Crawfords. We have evidence that a Colonel William Crawford flour shed in this section at or after the death of the subject of this sketch. He resided somewhere in Washington or Greene counties. Other Crawfords came hither from the eastern part of Pennsylvania, and in those days of constant military duty there were many titles which fact has made many people imagine they are descendants of the martyred Crawford.

Colonel Crawford's military career began in 1756, when he received a commission as ensign from the Governor of Virginia and joined a company of riflemen forming a part of the ill-fated Braddock expedition against Fort Duquesne, wherein he first fought under Washington. His courage, patience and endurance, together with his knowledge of woodcraft and Indian methods, enabled him to render efficient aid in that disastrous campaign. He came out of it with honor. Upon the recommendation of Washington he was subsequently commissioned as Captain and accompanied the Forbes expedition marching again with Washington and the Virginia troops against Fort Duquesne, this time with better success and even greater honor. With the cessation of hostilities he resumed his peaceful occupations of farming and surveying in the valley of Virginia.

Major General Daniel Morgan was a member of Captain Crawford's company in the Forbes expedition, and Morgan fought at least one personal battle for Crawford. When Crawford's company was ready to march to the rendezvous to join Washington there was a lack of transportation, and a passing teamster and his outfit were pressed into service. The driver demurred, but finally said: "I will fight you or any man in your company. If I am whipped, I will go with you; if I whip you, you let me off." Captain Crawford promptly accepted the challenge and stripped for the encounter, but Morgan drew him aside and protested against it, pointing out the effect a possible defeat might have on his authority and the discipline of the company. On his insistence, Crawford yielded to his request to be permitted to fight the teamster. Morgan was youthful, tall and slender, but when stripped for the fray he disclosed a stalwart frame and enormous bones and muscles. When the word was given, he sprang upon his antagonist with the quickness and ferocity of a tiger. The teamster, who prided himself upon his pugilistic skill, was smashed down and knocked out with a few blows of Morgan's tremendous fists, and his enlistment in the service was complete and unequivocal.

The Pontiac War called Crawford again to arms, and he rendered efficient service in protecting the frontier from the murderous forays of the savages. He was much esteemed as a citizen and was frequently honored with public offices. In connection with his public duties and his private interests he became familiar with the territory west of the Alleghanies, especially that part watered by the Monongahela river and its branches. The tide of immigration was turning this way. Report said the lands were rich and the climate fine. An adventurous spirit, coupled with the English desire for large estates, beckoned him. Early in the summer of 1767 he set out on horseback to seek a new home in the Land of Promise. He inspected the Youghiogheny valley, and determined to locate on the banks of the river opposite Connellsville. The place was then known as "Stewart's Crossings," so called from the fact that one William Stewart had lived near there in 1753. Stewart did not stay long. The French having taken possession of the country, the Indians got troublesome and he left the following year for a safer locality. Crawford's original tract embraced the most of New Haven, which has recently been consolidated with Connellsville.

When Crawford settled here he supposed he was in Virginia, as the district of West Virginia covered all the domain claimed by Virginia up to the Chestnut ridge. As claimed by Pennsylvania, it was in Cumberland county, subsequently Bedford, afterward Westmoreland, and finally Fayette, when the latter was formed in 1783. When Crawford settled here, all was a limitless wilderness, but very attractive to comers from east of the mountains.

Settlements had already been made on most of the branches of the Monongahela, Youghiogheny, Cassleman, Cheat, West Fork and Kanawha. In spite of a royal proclamation forbidding settlements "westward of the Allegheny mountains and contiguous to the Ohio river," settlers continued to come in and Crawford had neighbors at Gists, Turkeyfoot and Redstone. Lawrence Harrison came from Virginia in 1768 and settled on the Youghiogheny. His son, William, married Crawford's daughter, Sarah. Other settlers came steadily until 1773, feeling a reasonable measure of safety by reason of the English military fort at Pittsburg, known as Fort Pitt.

Crawford's place became a favorite resting point for travelers to and from Virginia to Fort Pitt and its neighborhood and the generous hospitality of Captain Crawford proved a serious tax upon his resources. His business capacity suggested some means of stopping this drain, and we find this interesting passage in a letter to Washington, dated January 15, 1774: "I intend public house-keeping, and I am prepared for it now, as I can no longer live without that or ruining myself—such numbers constantly travel the road and nobody keeping anything for horses but myself. Some days now, if I had rum, I could make three pounds. I have sent for some by Valentine Crawford, and can supply you with what you want as cheap as you can bring it here, if you carry it yourself." Prohibition was undiscovered at that time. It seems that Crawford was not averse to selling rum even without a license, and that Washington took his "nip" with regularity. Perhaps there were good reasons for it in those days. The winds of winter were bitter and the snakes were numerous and biting in the summer season.

Crawford's services as civilian and soldier were conspicuous and continuous during the years of his residence in the valley of the Youghiogheny. In 1770 he was commissioned Justice of the Peace for Cumberland county, then the most westerly county of Pennsylvania, Bedford county, embracing the home of Crawford, was formed March 1, 1771, when Governor Penn appointed Crawford one of the Justices of the Peace for the new county, and in 1773, the erection of Westmoreland from Bedford taking in his residence, he was commissioned one of the Justices of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, and of the County Court of Common Pleas of that county. As he was the first named on the list of Justices, he became by courtesy and usage the President Judge of Westmoreland, the first to hold that office in the county. He was the same year appointed surveyor of the Ohio Company by the College of William and Mary.

In 1773, Lord Dunmore, Governor of Virginia, visited Colonel Crawford at his Youghiogheny home, and conferred about matters of state and personal interests. It has been surmised that both received valuable information and concessions about lands. Crawford obtaining guarantee for lands he had surveyed. In 1774, occurred Dr. Dunmore and Cresap War, when the celebrated Logan speech was made. Crawford became a prominent actor in this war. He commanded a company on scouting expeditions on the Ohio; built Fort Fincastle, afterward Fort Henry, now Wheeling, defended the frontier from Indian foray and massacre, destroyed two Mingo villages near where Columbus now stands, and performed many other signal services. The great and decisive battle of Point Pleasant, October 10, 1774, brought comparative peace to the frontier for a time, and Crawford settled quietly into home life.

Washington made numerous visits to "Spring Garden," as Crawford named his place, chiefly on business connected with taking up of lands. Correspondence between them and the books of Washington show continuous business relations, marked by uninterrupted friendship and trust from 1750 to 1774, when the opening of the Revolution changed business to war, when the sword took the place of the compass. As Washington's agent, Crawford was constantly on the move up and down the valleys of the Youghiogheny, Monongahela, Ohio and Kanawha, selecting, locating and surveying lands. During this period the correspondence between them shows that Crawford made frequent trips to Williamsburg and Mount Vernon, spending most of his time at the home of Washington where their business was transacted. How much land was taken up is not known in detail, but the records show that Washington's interests in this line had been actively cared for at the time of the opening of the land office of the Proprietaries for the sale of the lands west of the mountains, April 3, 1769. Among the entries in Washington's name were "The Meadows," 234 acres, embracing the site of Fort Necessity. Others patented in other names, but subsequently found to belong to Washington, embraced six tracts containing some 2,000 acres and included "The Forks," now known as Perryopolis, where Washington subsequently built a mill. These lands were taken up under Governor Dinwiddie's Proclamation of 1754 granting "to every person having the rank of a field officer 5,000 acres, to every Captain 3,000 acres, to every subaltern or staff officer 2,000 acres, to every non-commissioned officer 200 acres, to every private 50 acres."

Crawford took a prominent part in the boundary dispute between Virginia and Pennsylvania. He was Presiding Justice of the Westmoreland county courts, and advised the Penns of the clash between the Pennsylvania authorities and Lord Dunmore's agent, Dr. John Connolly. He seems to have become disgusted with the timid policy of the proprietaries and embraced the more aggressive cause of Virginia. The dispute between Virginia and Pennsylvania was an old one, dating back to the earlier years of the 18th century. The counter claims of England and France to the country around the headwaters of the Ohio were the direct cause of Washington's first visit here, when as a mere stripling he was sent as an envoy of Governor Dinwiddie to the French commandmant at Le Bouf, and made the entire journey in the dead of winter afoot with Christopher Gist as guide and companion. Both nations maintained their rival claims with so much vigor that a native chieftain ironically inquired:

"The French claim all on one side of the Ohio, and the English all on the other. Where lie the Indian lands?"

The French claimed the entire country from the mouth of the Miskasinpi to the headwaters of the Ohio, while the English claimed from ocean to ocean.

In the height of the boundary dispute Virginia claimed all the country adjacent to Fort Pitt, as well in their own right as in the King's name as a royal colony. While it was admitted that the Penn grant ran westward to this section, it was argued that the Penns had failed to defend it against the French and the King was obliged to regain it by force, hence it reverted again to the King to do with as it pleased him. To the Pennsylvania Commissioners who went to protest, Governor Dunmore said that in no event other than His Majesty's orders would he relinquish jurisdiction over Fort Pitt. Accordingly on November 8, 1770, Virginia erected a new county out of the region and named it Yohogania county. This county embraced nearly all of Washington Fayette, Westmoreland, and Allegheny counties. The court house stood a couple of miles above Elizabeth, on the west side of the Monongahela river. Colonel Crawford was one of the commissioners to adjust the county bounds. The boundary dispute continued throughout the troublous period of the Revolution, not being finally settled until 1781, two years after Crawford's death. The land was ceded to Pennsylvania and Yohogania became known to history as the Lost County.

Upon the opening of the Revolution, Crawford abandoned county disputes and threw all his energy and patriotism into the national cause. He entered the service as Lieutenant Colonel of the Fifth Virginia Regiment, but was soon called to the command of the Seventh, succeeding Colonel William Daugerfield. Soon after, having been assigned to the duty of raising a new regiment he resigned and returned home to recruit for his new command, the Thirteenth Virginia, or West August Regiment. This was in 1777. Under date of February 17, Congress resolved, "That 20,000 dollars be paid to Colonel William Crawford for raising and equipping his regiment, which is a part of the Virginia war levies." In August, 1777, with 200 of his new recruits, Crawford joined the army under Washington, near Philadelphia. He rendered efficient services in the movements which resulted in the battle of Brandywine. He participated in the battle of Germantown and the Long Island campaign, shared in the retreat through New Jersey, was one of the heroic band crossing the Delaware, engaged in the defense of Philadelphia, commanded the scouts in Delaware, and was with Washington when his courage, patriotism and sagacity were much needed and properly appreciated.

Late in this year, General Washington deemed it advisable to send an experienced commander into the Western country to assist in its defense. His choice fell upon Colonel Crawford, and he was dispatched to Fort Pitt to take command under Brigadier General Edward Hand. This order lost him his place in the Continental line, to the undying regret of Washington, who was unable to get it restored to him. Colonel Crawford had command of the Virginia militia at Pittsburg. He campaigned in the Indian country until the close of the Revolution in 1781, when he retired from the service and sought his home determined to pass the remainder of his days in peaceful pursuits.

But, alas! it was not to be so.

With the establishment of peace the settlers west of the Alleghanies fondly believed themselves to be free from savage onslaughts, but their lauded security was rudely disturbed. From the past at least, British influence of sinister character were at work. Encouraged by British arms and authority, the Hurons, Shawanese and Wyandots overran the frontier of the Upper Ohio spreading death and destruction in their path and carrying terror throughout the country. This hostility of the red man was intensified by the belief that their lands were to be taken from them. The presence of British soldiery among them caused many to discredit the report that Cornwallis had surrendered and the war of the settlers was over. This feeling was aroused to general fury by the cruel and cowardly assassination of the Christian Indians at Gnadenhutten early in 1782 by a band of Americans under one David Williamson. It was deemed necessary to send out an expedition against the Indians and subjugate them. At the earnest request of General Irvine, in command at Fort Pitt Colonel Crawford undertook command of this expedition.

He did so with much misgiving. He was overborne by a presentiment of evil. Before departing from his home for the rendezvous at Mingo Bottom on the Ohio river near Steubenville, he made his will. Strangely enough Williamson was his principal opponent for the command of the company and Crawford won his election by but a few votes. Williamson became second in command. Crawford must have felt the indignity of this, but his hand was upon the sword and his honor was pledged. He had no choice but to go forward. It is stated that he would not have accompanied the expedition had Williamson been chosen its commander. Williamson, however, was eager for the fray and did not permit his disappointment to deter his zeal in the cause. Fate selected the wrong victim for the Sandusky sacrifice.

The Crawford expedition was composed of the flower of the border. It numbered 480 mounted men and included many of the most experienced Indian fighters in this section. Early on the morning of May 25 1782, it set out upon its march, the objective point being the Indian towns of Upper Sandusky and its object their destruction. Every precaution was taken to keep the designs of the small army secret, but there are evidences that its every movement was watched by Indian spies who carried the news to the British and sought with success their assistance. The Wyandot towns were reached on the 6th of June, but to the surprise of the company they were found to be abandoned. It was decided to advance. During the day some skulking savages were discovered and a desultory warfare was kept up between them and the invading force. The next day passed in similar skirmishing. The wily red men were playing for time. Towards evening the Wyandots were joined by Butler's Rangers, a British troop of horse-from Detroit, and a large body of Shawnees and Delawares appeared upon the flank of the Americans. They were between two hostile fires. Evening was at hand. A night retreat was planned. It began at 9 o'clock, but was unhappily detected by the simplest savages. Frequent rifle volleys and fierce dashes from the impenetrable darkness threw the retreat into great confusion, which was increased by the firing of those on the flank in a hidden swamp. The morning light found less than 300 of the 480 men remaining together. Among the missing were Colonel Crawford, his son and his son-in-law, Major Harrison, his nephew and Dr. John Knight, the surgeon of the expedition.

All day long this retreating band were pursued by the British and Indians. In the afternoon, they took stand in the woods on the edge of Sandusky plains. After a spirited conflict lasting two hours, they retreated again under cover of a drizzling storm of rain mon ring. The baffled foe rallied to re forces, but the pursuit was soon given over and the broken remnant of the once confident expedition finally reached Mingo Bottom. The expedition was a complete failure and the loss was nearly 100 men.

But what of Crawford?

The "Great Captain," to the unspeakable joy of the Indians, was in their hands, and they determined to put him to death with all the fiendish tortures that devilish malignity could invent. In company with Dr. Knight he was taken to Upper Sandusky, where on the 11th of June, on the banks of Tymachtee creek, he suffered the fate of a martyr after manner that would have put Nero to shame. Dr. Knight, who was compelled to witness the torture of Crawford, subsequently escaped and to him we are indebted for a vivid and circumstantial account of Crawford's melancholy end. Colonel Crawford was stripped and painted black. He was then set upon and almost flayed alive by a mob of yelling, savages, after which he was tied to a tall stake around which a fire of hickory fagots was built.

Among those present was Simon Girty, the renegade. Crawford had asked Girty if he was to be burned to death. Girty laughed and said, yes. Crawford replied that he would try to endure it with fortitude and die like a soldier and a Christian. Captain Pipes harangued the crowd reviling Crawford. The infuriated savages rushed in and cut off Crawford's ears. They then fired charges of powder into his bare body. The fires were replenished and the process of literally roasting the victim to death began. Fires were placed 15 feet from the stake, and within that awful circle the brave Crawford suffered the torments of hell for nearly four agonizing hours. Finally in a delirium of pain he asked Girty to shoot him. Girty laughed brutally and said he had no gun. Girty had once been repelled in his addresses to Crawford's beautiful daughter, Sallie and he was now enjoying the satisfaction of a diabolical revenge for that indignity. The limit of human endurance was almost reached. Crawford reached his hands to heaven and prayed. He asked for strength to bear his fate with fortitude, and for mercy in the future that was denied him in the present. Soon after he sank down upon his bed of burning coals exhausted. The savage fiends rushed in, scalped him and threw live coals upon his bleeding brain and body. Once more he rose, bloody, blinded, burned. He tottered twice again around the stake, then fell to rise no more. Again the barbarians heaped coals upon him, but their hellish work was done. As the sun sank in the west Crawford's dauntless spirit winged its flight from its mutilated earthly tenement to that mercy beyond the skies for which he mutely pled.

Thus perished the Pioneer and Patriot of the Youghiogheny. His last words were those of a Hero and a Christian. In the light of their utterance, and the supreme circumstances under which they were spoken, who can doubt the courage of the honor of William Crawford?

He perished in the work of building this nation. He gave his life as a sacrifice to future generations, and it is meet that future generations should honor that martyrdom.

This fair land that laughs with the harvest, hums with industry and yields from its bowels undreamed mineral wealth was bought for us at the price of toil and privation, suffering and death. It was once a wilderness inhabited by that child of nature, the red man, who docile and friendly with his white brothers in the beginning, subsequently became degenerate and diabolical under the corrupting influences of foreign potentates seeking to enlarge their domains across the seas.

Juggled with by the statecraft of England and France, chested by unscrupulous settlers, bribed by the interests of contending nations, his cupidity roused by alluring temptations and his moral character warped by rum, he opposed with furious hate and fiendish action the March of Civilization in the New World.

But that march never halted!

It climbed to the rocky summit of the Alleghanies it spread through the Valley of the Ohio and over "the Dark and Bloody Ground" of Kentucky; it pressed forward across the great plains and up the majestic rivers beyond the Mississippi; it scaled the mighty peaks of the Rockies, and descended to meet and greet and buffet the rolling billows of the Pacific; it penetrated the frozen wilds of golden Alaska and planted Old Glory in the far-distant Mystic Orient.

Its progress was irresistible because its leaders were men of high character, dauntless courage and indomitable will. Among them William Crawford stands pre-eminent. That his name and fame are not more publicly honored is a distinct reflection upon the public spirit of our public men.

DON'T GROW OLD.

Keep Your Hair Bright and Luxuriant and Stay Young.

Yes, Parisian Sage, the most invigorating hair restorer, grows hair; the women of America, who have luxuriant hair know it does, and that is why thousands of attractive women throughout the land are regularly using it.

For years this almost marvelous grower of lustrous and beautiful hair was confined to the elite of Europe and New York City, but about two years ago it was given to a select list of druggists, and today can be obtained in any city or town in America where society women of refinement dwell.

Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair tonic in the world. It makes the hair soft, lustrous and luxuriant in a few days. It is perfumed most daintily and is not sticky or greasy. It stops falling hair, cures dandruff and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

This is what Mrs. Elizabeth E. Anderson, Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes:

"I had given up hope of ever being cured of dandruff, when I purchased a bottle of Parisian Sage. It has entirely removed the dandruff, and has started a growth of new hair, and all this after having been troubled for 15 years. I cheerfully recommend Parisian Sage." A. A. Clarke is the regularly appointed agent in Connellsville for Parisian Sage, and he will sell you a large bottle under a rigid guarantee for 50 cents.

A large bottle of better tonic that's what you get when you lay down a half dollar for a bottle of Parisian Sage. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package and bottle.

Two Hundred Suits of Boys' Clothing at Exactly Half Price

Splendidly Made, Excellent Fabrics, Shapely Models, The reason they are Half Price is that the trousers are straight cut instead of bloomer.

BUT faddish clothes are not necessary to "vacation day" needs. Good serviceable clothing is the main thing and that is what this sale affords. Every thread of it wool. The best of linings and inter-linings, tailored in a faultless manner, sewed together with strong thread, doubly reinforced where the most of wear is given them. Every suit is absolutely perfect in every way, not a thing wrong with them except that the pants are straight cut. We bought these suits and the bloomer suits at one and the same time. No one in the country could foretell the strong tendency toward the bloomer styles. We bought bloomers and straight cuts in about equal nnmbers, the bloomers have sold, the straight cut stayed, but they'll go in a jiffy at Half Price.

Good Strong Vacation Suits---Two for the Price of One.

THE ages range from 7 years to 17 years, there are various models to choose from as the sale includes every single one of our Boys' Suits (having straight trousers.) Over two hundred of them in all, and when everything is said the straight cut pants are more serviceable for vacation needs than Knickerbockers; they fit closely and are not nearly so apt to catch and tear as are the loose-fitting bloomer styles; fabrics, too, are harder and tougher, for in the Knickerbocker styles fabrics must be of soft finish to give to the garment the desired effect of fullness and drape. Everything favors the buying of one or more of these suits. You can obtain two suits at the price of one. They are made from the newest and best of fabrics and they are preeminently, vacation suits. They'll be on sale Friday and until they are gone. The regular prices of these suits were from $3 to $10.

The Sale Begins Friday, Jane 11th

Two days in succession have all the games in the Pennsylvania & West Virginia league been prevented by rain. Wednesday the downpour put an end to the contests in Connellsville, Fairmont and Grafton while yesterday Charleroi, Grafton and Clarksburg were visited by sufficient wetness to make baseball a thing out of the question.

The big leagues have been suffering, too, but not to the extent that the little fellows have. The major leaguers have a strong treasury behind them while in the minors it is hard sledding to make an even break of it when everything is rosy.

This is the worst June for baseball that the game has known for years. To date there have been 19 postponements around the circuit This means that $570 has been paid out, with nothing coming in Another unfortunate feature of the whole affair is that the days of late when baseball was possible the weather has been so threatening that the attendance dropped almost out of sight

Connellsville and Clarksburg have suffered four postponements Charleroi the same number, Grafton three and Uniontown and Fairmont two each.

Ferdinand Drumm has for a second time quit the Clarksburg team as manager. About a week ago Drumm was relieved of his berth in an effort to reduce expenses but the team went so bad that he was recalled Late this week he decided to throw up the job for good and has accepted a more lucrative position out west

Drumm is a good manager and had a good team in Clarksburg in spite of its losing streak His successor has not been announced. It is not stated who will succeed Drumm as manager of the Moguls

The Grafton team is certainly showing better form than during the early weeks of the season The Engineers have had Clarksburg's goat and have been hitting only the high places Clarksburg looks to be the better team of the two but the Engineers are playing a dead swell game just now.

Wish Fairmont could come along about now. The Cokers are going at a stride that would make Hunt's lion hunt for shelter. Uniontown gave the Fairmont team a bad scare but the Champs do not have as much luck against the leaders as the Cokers do

The pennant fight just now seems to lay between Fairmont, Connellsville and Uniontown. Aside from Fairmont's long lead neither of the other teams seem to have anything on the Cokers.

Connellsville has a consistent team and is not dependent upon one or two stars to win all its games. The stickers are hitting at a steady gait and can be depended upon to make trouble for other pitchers.

Ever notice that the tail end of the batting order of the Cokers is just as apt to start something as the fellows higher up? Chip Francis, Tiffany and Fraley have cut loose with a rally as often as Gilligan, Hagan, Ike Francis and Calhoun. Both ends of the list have been going strong.

Prominent Prohibitionist Dead.

Pasadena, Cal., June 11.—Gideon Tabor Stewart, for sixty years prominent in the country's Prohibition movement and in 1876 that party's candidate for vice president, died at his home here, age eighty-five.

EIGHTH COKERS' LUCKY INNING.

Have Scored 18 Runs in This Session—Seventh and Ninth Next Best.

TALLY LATE IN MOST GAMES

Have Scored More Runs in Last Four Innings Than First Five—Opening Session Bad on the Road—Score Oftener In Eighth.

What is the Cokers lucky inning? Give a guess Seventh? Almost right The seventh goes by the name of the "lucky seventh," and it is, to some extent, but the grand old inning for the Coker crew is the eighth This is more true of games on the road than at home. On the road the Cokers have piled up 14 runs in the eighth inning, against a measly four at home At home the second and seventh are the best On the road the first inning is a bad one and Sweeney's men have only crossed the pan twice in that session while away from their home grounds The second is also bad on the road, three runs being credited to this inning The fourth and ninth are poor innings at home, three runs having been made in these sessions.

When the Cokers visit other towns the teams there want to keep a weather eye open for the eighth and ninth innings The Connellsville players have scored 14 runs in eighth and 10 in the ninth while on the road. The runs scored ab oad in the latter half of the game is overwhelming. During the first five innings of foreign games they have only scored 18 runs to 36 in the closing four At home the situation is different as they tallied 30 times in the first five to 18 in the last four In all the games played the Cokers have scored 58 times in the last four innings to 48 the first five.

The Cokers have scored but once in an extra-inning session, getting one run over in the 16th inning of a Uniontown game.

The Cokers have scored in the third and eighth inning oftener than any others. They have never made more than one run in the first and six is the greatest they ever scored in one inning. The "lucky seventh" claims this honor They have tallied five runs in the second and fifth sessions; four in the third and seventh, and three runs three times in the eighth inning and once in the seventh This means three runs in any one game.

The 106 runs were scored in 67 innings. This means they failed to score in quite a few sessions. But they have managed to pile up sufficient scores to have an even break. The scores by innings follow

| Inning | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | Tot |

| At Home | 0 | 0 | 7 | 7 | 5 | 1 | 9 | 4 | 5 | 48 |

RULED A LOTTERY.

Missing Word Contest Renders Newspapers Unmailable.

The Daily Shield of Mansfield, O., has been thrown out of the mails owing to its missing word page R. P Goodwin, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, has ruled that such contest is in the nature of a lottery and as such was unmailable Following is an extract from the ruling

The provision for the award of such prizes to the first person who sends or brings in the correct answers renders this scheme a lottery It is wholly a matter of chance as to each contestant whether his answer will be the first received.

Why I Advertise

I believe that seven tenths of all headaches have their origin in strained vision. I also know that correctly-fitted glasses will entirely relieve the headaches by removing the cause. Scarcely a day passes, but I relieve some sufferer through my knowledge of making and fitting glasses. I am anxious that all sufferers should know there is a remedy so simple; this is one reason why I advertise.
